GREAT NEW SUPPLEMENT WITH ARCHITECTS CHOICE

Enchanting Willow's

Swirling hand-wrought iron branches and twigs supporting faux alabaster glass shades were the perfect lighting selection for the atmospheric Willows restaurant, part of the brand new Barton Grange Garden Centre complex in Brock, Preston. Blending effortlessly into the woodland themed restaurant, the 'Forest' family of luminaires from Chelsom offers a decorative focus in daylight together with subtle ambient illumination for duskier dining. The Chelsom Forest collection features finely hand-wrought metalwork finished in antique rust with subtle gold brushing together with marbled mouth-blown Murano glass shades authentically created by Italian craftsman. This elegant yet rustic range is available as five and eight light chandeliers, wall washer, two and five light wall brackets and an imposing tree like floorstandard with an overall height of 1800mm. For further information, telephone Chelsom on (0) 1253 831400 or visit www.chelsom.co.uk

Illuminating Alumina

Facilitating the finest materials, environmentally friendly, forested hardwoods and 19mm toughened glass, along with the finest, hand finished craftsmanship, Alumina is functional, as well as ambient and meditative. The LED lights have a variety of settings. They can phase slowly or quickly through the complete colour spectrum or be fixed to a colour of your choice by a very neat remote control. The lights are 12v, therefore efficient, environmentally friendly and have a lifespan of up to 100,000 hours with all parts, if necessary, easily replaced. These designs have a versatile architectural application; they would be stunning as a bar in a nightclub or a display cabinet in a fashion boutique; in an office or showroom and can be adapted for any such application. Whatever your interior brief is, the design team can assist you in exploring its potential. Alumina is made in a solid (not veneered) hardwood of your choice. Handbuilt porcelain lighting

Liz Emtage Ceramics make translucent, porcelain lighting, handbuilt in unrestrained natural forms that exploit the malleable quality of the clay. These lamps are inlaid with different organic textures, which leave a delicate impression in the clay surface. When lit these lamps emit an ethereal glow, converting the surface decoration into textures of light. When off the lamps become sculptural pieces, rich with subtle surface pattern. Currently the range consists of table and floor lamps, pendant shades, standard lamps, wall lights and night lights. The lamps are naturally ivory in colour, although they can have stains mixed into the clay body, creating subtle colour tones - which become more dramatic when the piece is illuminated. Liz Emtage Ceramics do specialist commissions for clients and develop site-specific pieces. Clients request particular things from their gardens to be inlaid into their light, or a favourite pattern or texture. The colours are chosen to compliment the pattern on the lamp surface and vice versa. Lights of Venice

In true celebration of its Italian roots, the regionally renowned Ferrari's restaurant in Longridge, near Preston now boasts exquisite Venetian glass chandeliers from Chelsom, specialists in decorative lighting for contract interiors. Authentically mouth-blown by artisans in Venice, the striking Noir chandeliers feature opulent black glass on polished chrome frames. Teamed with hand-made georgette silk shades in gold and black, the luminaires exude an air of luxury and romance, perfect for a prestigious venue that is fast becoming a magnet for weddings and events. The Noir collection is available as an 8+4 chandelier as used in Ferraris and a smaller six-light chandelier, with matching single or double arm wall brackets.
